Thando Setshwaro

What are you studying?

BA in Political Science and International Relations

Where are you studying?

University of The Witwatersrand

How do you want the Efeng Bacha Initiative to assist your entrepreneurship journey?

I would like the Efeng Bacha to help me in lobbying the schools that I intend on working with and with some little bit of fundraising for the equipment needed.

How do you #ServeLikeMadiba?

By spending most of my time in activities that are of benefit to my society, this is through volunteering my services to those in need. I also make sure I participate in dialogues, signing of petitions and Bills that aim to build this country.

As a #legacyleader, what is your advice to the children and youth of our nation?

My advice to the children and youth is that we are no longer the future but the present, you are never too young to be part of the decision makers of the world therefore never limit yourself to anything. It is up to us to make the change we want to see, let us make Tata proud by living up to his legacy.

What is the legacy you hope to leave one day?

I hope to change the stories of young black people, I hope to be their voice of change and reason in fighting for climate justice and the emancipation of all women and children. I want to be remembered for being the voice of the voiceless and for ensuring that all laws bear fruit for its people.

What is your favourite Nelson Mandela quote?

What counts in life is not the mere fact that we have lived. It is what difference we have to the lives of others that will determine the significance of the life we lead
