

Efeng Bacha 2021 - 2022

Tsebo Sekole

What are you studying?

Medicine

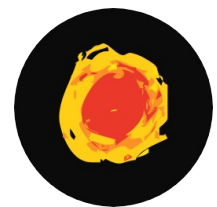

Where are you studying?

University of Pretoria

How do you want the Efeng Bacha Initiative to assist your entrepreneurship journey?

Exposure to more entrepreneurs will be instrumental in giving me knowledge on the entrepreneurial obstacles one may encounter as well as workshops where the skills learnt are applied, for further development

How do you #ServeLikeMadiba?

By creating a platform that amplifies the voices of the marginalised so that they can be heard. This includes children, women, the LGBTQI+ community , people living with disabilities and all other underrepresented communities. Through my campaign Bereka Mosadi , young women and children are given the platform to feel dignified and find their voice with the intention of bridging the gap between equity and equality.

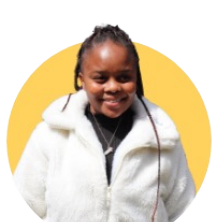

As a #legacyleader, what is your advice to the children and youth of our nation?

For a start ,Your voice has the ability to make change , your voice has the power to give a voice to others in an effort to reach collective change. Let your voice be the first step in fighting the disparities of our country

What is the legacy you hope to leave one day?

One that personifies the power of an uplifting ripple effect , if one person takes it upon themselves to help someone else or empower them, then that person is empowered and can also help another person.

What is your favourite Nelson Mandela quote?

“What counts in life is not the mere fact that we have lived. It is what difference we have made to the lives of others that will determine the significance of the life we lead”
